Tampa Bay start-up joins forces with USF Tampa Bay Technology Incubator

TAMPA, Fla. (July 9, 2012) –You Can Learn, Inc. has joined the Tampa Bay Technology Incubator (TBTI), part of USF CONNECT at the University of South Florida.

You Can Learn, Inc. develops educational applications for tablet and mobile devices designed to enhance learning in and out of the classroom. With adaptable courses, lessons are able to meet the needs of individual students.

“With more than eighteen educational applications already available and several more hitting the App Store in the very near future, You Can Learn, Inc. is looking forward coming together with the University of South Florida and Tampa Bay tech community,” said Joseph Tavolacci, president of You Can Learn, Inc. “These resources, as well as the innovative and creative environment at USF CONNECT, will help bring You Can Learn’s ideas for interactive educational applications to fruition in the coming months.”

You Can Learn, Inc.’s applications target all ages and serve a variety of functions by providing academic support, personal and professional development skills and special interest courses.

Since February, You Can Learn, Inc. has been releasing learning applications for Apple’s iPad and iPhone and has begun the process of developing for Android and Windows 8 devices.

“Application design through our proprietary Building Block system allows users to take on a larger and more comprehensive educational experience, with course material customized to match the student’s level of expertise and speed of learning,” said Tavolacci.
